Using the Irish Catholic Catechism for Adults in your parish

We all know September is the time when children go back to school, and the familiar routine of learning starts once again. Nowadays, this is also true for many adults who have decided to further their own education, either formally or informally. This month, the Irish Church has a new resource for those who wish to deepen their understanding of their own faith. The Irish Catholic Catechism for Adults presents to all Irish Catholics a renewed opportunity to study, reflect on and to live by the faith we profess. Many parishes have already discovered how fruitful it can be for adults to come together, as a living faith community, to discuss this new catechism, which has been written specifically for the Irish context. To date useful approaches have included:

- Organise a three, four or five week study group in the evening, focusing on selected chapters from the Catechism;
- Start a catechism study group one day a week after morning Mass; and/or
- Select chapters from the Catechism relevant to the celebration of particular sacraments, and discuss them with those preparing to celebrate these sacraments.

ICPO launches "It's good to know before you go" campaign

The Irish Council for Prisoners Overseas has launched an information campaign "It's good to know before you go" which is encouraging young Irish emigrants to take care of themselves while travelling and living overseas.

The campaign emphasises the importance of being aware of cultural differences and of adhering to local laws and customs, while also raising awareness of ICPO's services so that emigrants who get into difficulty are aware of the supports available, to themselves and others.

Information materials with advice for young emigrants and a campaign video have been uploaded to the new ICPO website www.icpo.ie. See also the new ICPO Twitter presence @ICPO prisoners and their Facebook page.
