Pope Francis' words concluding Synod of Bishops on Family

Pope Francis delivered his closing address to the Synod of Bishops on the Family on Sunday 24 October saying: "Certainly, the Synod was not about settling all the issues having to do with the family, but rather attempting to see them in the light of the Gospel and the Church's tradition and two-thousand-year history, bringing the joy of hope without falling into a facile repetition of what is obvious or has already been said. It was about urging everyone to appreciate the importance of the institution of the family and of marriage between a man and a woman, based on unity and indissolubility, and valuing it as the fundamental basis of society and human life. It was about listening to and making heard the voices of the families and the Church's pastors, who came to Rome bearing on their shoulders the burdens and the hopes, the riches and the challenges of families throughout the world." Archbishop Eamon Martin and Archbishop Diarmuid Martin attended the Synod.

Irish bishops visit European institutions in Brussels

Bishops and support staff took part in an information visit to the European Commission, and Parliament, in Brussels in November. The group held meetings with the Commissioner for Agriculture & Rural Development Mr Phil Hogan as well as with senior officials from the Commission and with members of the diplomatic service of Ireland, and the Northern Ireland

Executive Office in Brussels. The group also met with Irish MEPs, North and South, and two European Parliament Vice-Presidents, Ms Mairead McGuinness and Mr Antonio Tajani. The visit included a meeting with COMECE, the Commission of the Bishops' Conferences of the European Community.

40th anniversary of the Catholic Communications Office

To mark forty years of service to the Irish Bishops' Conference, the CCO co-hosted a conference with Saint Patrick's College Maynooth on 5 November. Archbishop Eamon Martin opened the event, whilst Monsignor Paul Tighe, secretary of the Pontifical Council for Social Communications, gave the keynote address on 'The Church in a Digital World – Sharing Good News'. Father Tom Casey SJ discussed the positive but also the creative and destructive power of words. The conference was chaired by RTÉ and BBC broadcaster Audrey Carville. See catholicbishops.ie for audio and texts.
